FOREWORD

The Academy of Education Planning and Management was established about a decade ago. It has emerged as premier institution of education research, training and management information system. In a complex and developing education system coupled with limited financial resources it is imperative to make sustained efforts to improve the internal efficiency of the existing institutions. The need based training of personnel working at different levels of the education ladder has become a major challenge for the Ministry of Education. This responsibility was entrusted to the Academy and inspite of limited facilities, the progress has been significant and sustained.

The support to the planning process through research and field data is a critical factor for pragmatic plan formulation process which facilitates the implementation of different programmes. The inherent weakness of a data base in our education system was felt particularly at the decision making level. Some efforts were made in this regard through the establishment of National Education Management Information System (NEMIS) in 1991. After a good start the Provincial Education Management Information Systems were established. The project was further extended to districts by the provinces to facilitate the decentralization process. Although there were many problems to operationalize the data management system to the districts because of the non availability of trained manpower but efforts made in this regard have led to encouraging results.

The NEMIS was shifted to the Academy in December 1993 to provide technical support to the provinces, making data available to decision makers for policy options, provide easy access to information, monitor the efficiency of the system and assist in the analyzing of data. The Academy in a relatively short time has made a steady progress which is manifest from this publication. This document was only made possible with the help and collaboration of provincial EMIS's. The data on the jointly agreed indicators was provided by the provinces with technical assistance from the Academy and the data relating the areas under the control of Federal government was collected by the Academy. The data of the Private Schools was obtained from Planning & Development Division, Government of Pakistan. The compilation and publication of the national data in the present form for 1992-93 was done by the Academy.

I appreciate the efforts of the Academy in making good efforts in the preparation of a very useful document. I also expect that the provincial governments will come up with innovative ideas to improve this kind of publication for the subsequent years.
